

Another Christmas Day

Sparkling frost and shining snow
Conceal the scars of the world below
Conflicts rage, ill winds blow
 Just another Christmas Day.

Twinkling lights and ringing bells
Cannot hide a thousand hells
That men create for themselves
 Just another Christmas Day.

But wait . . . is that eternal hope I hear
Coming in with this new year
Can we really put an end to fear
 Dare we hope that we will learn
 That we do not have to slash and burn
 That people working together can earn
 A better Christmas Day.
